

SHICK TEST IS USED ON CHILDREN IN MANY CITIES

Test Shows Children Who Are Susceptible to Diphtheria and Is One of the Greatest Late Discoveries.

(By DR. V. D. GUTTARD.)
In reading special articles in newspapers and magazines relating to prevention of diseases, the Shick test is frequently mentioned. In many cities this test is made on all school children. It is made to determine just which children are susceptible to diphtheria.

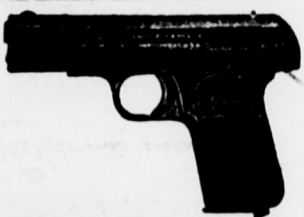

A drop of very dilute diphtheria toxin, especially prepared for the purpose, is injected just under the skin with a hypodermic needle. If there is no antitoxin in the blood, a small red spot will appear over the site of the injection. This indicates that this child is not immune and will readily take the disease if exposed to a case or to a carrier of diphtheria germs.

If all children showing this positive reaction are given an injection under the skin of the standard mixture of toxin and antitoxin, they will become immune for years. The injections are given a week apart just as in the prevention of typhoid fever and three injections are given just as in the latter case.

Means then are at hand to banish diphtheria entirely from any community. This is being done in many eastern cities, and is a practical, safe and reliable method to be practiced everywhere.

This test stands out as one of the greatest triumphs of preventive medicine and one of the most important scientific discoveries of all time.

In the Mason County Court Monday Frank Wood was appointed Deputy Constable in the Second Magisterial district upon motion of Constable Ben P. Fleming.

LARGE AUDIENCES AT CHRISTIAN REVIVAL SUNDAY

Pastor-Evangelist To Preach On Important Topic at Monday Night's Meeting.

Large audiences were out at both morning and evening services at the Christian church revival meeting Sunday. Over three hundred were present at Bible school and the large auditorium was taxed to capacity at both preaching services. Many people finding seats in the gallery and on the platform. The singing led by Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman was inspiring and as the meeting progresses a greater number are attracted to the chorus by their excellent leadership.

Rev. Mullen preached two strong gospel sermons; the subject for the morning being "A Day of Good Tidings" and the evening "Sold Out." Both sermons rang true in their application of Bible teaching to present day life, social, economic and religious. He leaves no middle ground for those who do not accept God's word as the positive force in human affairs. The subject for Monday evening's sermon "Can One Be a Christian and not Belong to the church?" should and doubtless will attract a large audience.

Every evening at 7:15.

POPE BENEDICT DIED EARLY SUNDAY AFTER A HARD BATTLE

Head of Roman Catholic Church Succumbs to Pneumonia After Battling Hard for Days.

POPE BENEDICT XV.

Rome, Jan. 23. — Pope Benedict's death occurred at 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

The end had been expected for several hours. The attending physicians, Cardinal Gasparri and other members of the Pope's household were present at the bedside.

Shortly before midnight all hope was abandoned, and at 2 o'clock Dr. Battistini announced that the Pope could not live longer than four hours at the maximum.

There had been moments during Saturday when it was feared the end had come, but stimulants revived the pontiff, and his natural powers of resistance carried him through the turning point temporarily. The holy father seemed to cling to life, as did Pope Pius X in 1914, when the final outcome was in doubt for many hours.

The Sacred Congregation convened Sunday morning when the Cardinals were informed of the Pope's death. With the exception of Cardinal Gasparri, the Papal Secretary of State, they gathered in Benedict's private apartments. Gasparri in due and solemn form, escorted by the Swiss Guard in full dress and accompanied by the prelates and acolytes of the Reverend Apostolic chamber entered the apartments a few minutes later. He is administering the Holy See during the interregnum. With him also was Monsignor Sincero, Secretary of the Sacred College.

Cardinal Gasparri, surrounded by the Cardinals, then proceeded to verify the death of Benedict, extending over the lifeless form a silver wand and crying out "Giacomo! Giacomo! Giacomo!"

He opened the certificate of death and declared: "Dominus Papa, Noster Mortuus est," thus announcing officially the Pope's death.

On leaving the Pontifical chambers, Cardinal Gasparri, still escorted by the Swiss Guard, descended to the first floor, where the Sacred Congregation convened, commencing its deliberations at 10 o'clock. The official and semi-official Vatican organs give 6 o'clock as the time of the Pope's death, and the Rome newspapers do likewise.

BUSINESS LULL TO END BY MARCH, KNOX ASSERTS.

"The salesmen of the United States hold the prosperity of the country in the palm of their hands, and they must not only make an effort to get the business of the country to a normal basis, but above a normal basis," James S. Knox, President of the Knox School of Salesmanship, of Cleveland, said at a lecture in the auditorium of the Littlefield School in Cincinnati.

"Business has been improving during the past few months and by March 1, 1922, the depression now existing in business will disappear," he said. "The export business of the country should be increased, and wide-awake business executives who are now making an effort to sell the goods they manufacture to foreign countries will bring the export business to a higher level."

FUNDS FOR CINCINNATI TERMINAL BEING RAISED

Mason County Land Owner Heads Committee and Makes First Contribution To Fund.

Cincinnati, Jan. 21. — Thousands of tons of tin plate, steel billets, pig iron, nails and similar cargo will be available for shipment by river to Cincinnati at a large saving to shippers if the proposed river terminal at Harriet street is installed. This statement was made yesterday by Captain Oscar F. Barrett, Chairman of the Special Rail-Water Terminal Committee, at a meeting of that committee, held at the Chamber of Commerce, when the construction was decided upon by private enterprise.

Captain Barrett held that the $25,000 necessary to construct the crane platform would be readily subscribed by users of the facility. He started the subscription list with $2,000, stating that the saving on a single cargo would indemnify the investors in the outlay.

The plan is to have a 50-foot platform, on which switch tracks of truck lines can be placed so that the sweep of the crane will make it possible to unload tonnage direct from the water carrier to gondola, flat car or truck. This facility will save the shipper upward of $1.50 a ton in handling and delivery charge, it is claimed.

GREAT SERMONS DELIVERED SUNDAY AT THE BIG REVIVAL

Evangelist, In Two Stirring Messages, Calls Men to Repentance—Great Audiences at Both Services.

Sunday at the revival services being held at the First M. E. Church, South, Dr. Harmon, delivered two powerful sermons summoning men to repentance. For his morning theme he spoke on "The Wages of Sin Is Death," reading as his lesson, Psalm 15, and choosing as his text, Romans 6:23. He discussed the Biblical definitions of sin as (1) the transgression of law, emphasizing the fact that all sins are placed in the same category; (2) all unrighteousness; (3) conformity to the world; (4) whatsoever is not of faith. Dr. Harmon lamented the failure of the world today to love God and holy things, while too much emphasis is being placed on the satisfying of material needs and physical pleasures. He was outspoken in his condemnation of passive church membership which tolerates standards of life and conduct that are a frightful menace to the young life in every community. He described sin as being universal and seductive, and no respecter of rank or of person. Its wages are proven by the Bible to be death to sobriety, virtue, manhood, liberty, conscience, the spirit, and ultimately to the soul.

The evening message was based on passages found in Psalm 9:17 and Revelation, 20:15, "Whosoever was not found written in the book of life as cast into the lake of fire." Dr. Harmon said there were but two kingdoms between which one can choose—the broad way leading down to one, the straight and narrow way leading up to the other. He emphasized the fact that God does not force a man into heaven or hell, but leaves him free to make his own choice. Hell is a place of eternal punishment is referred to 56 times in the Bible and Dr. Harmon summarized all the biblical teachings with regard to the conditions to be found in hell. No student of God's word can accept the present day teachings that tends to eliminate hell. In closing, he pleaded with his hearers that they accept God's promises of salvation and turn toward His glory world.

GEORGETOWN POLICEMAN FOUND DEAD IN ROOM

Officer Hays Was Native of Bracken—Is Buried at Brooksville Monday.

Georgetown, Ky., Jan. 23. —William Hays, night watchman of Georgetown, was found dead in his room at the Bradley building Saturday night. Mr. Hays, who was 49 years old, has been a policeman in Georgetown for many years.

He ate his midnight meal at a downtown restaurant Thursday night as usual, and later was seen by several persons on his beat. When he did not appear Friday friends became alarmed and when Chief of Police Arthur Salyers broke into the room the body was found lying across the bed. Hays apparently had been dead for several hours.

It is supposed that he was seized with acute indigestion and died before aid could be summoned. He was born and reared in Bracken county. The body was taken Sunday to Brooksville for burial Monday. He is survived by two brothers, both of whom live in Bracken county, and two sisters, Mrs. Flag, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Collier, of Crittenden, Ky. Mrs. Thomas McCann of this city, is Mrs. Hays' aunt.

MRS. MARTHA STANTON DIED AT HOME AT SHELBYVILLE

Widow of Distinguished Maysville Poet Dies at Advanced Age—Burial Tuesday at Frankfort.

Mrs. Martha Lindsey Stanton, the widow of the late Major Henry T. Stanton, poet laureate of Kentucky and known the world over as the author of "The Moneyless man," a native Maysvillian who spent most of his long life here, died at Shelbyville Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George I. Willis. The body will be taken to Frankfort Tuesday, following services at Shelbyville, and will be buried beside that of her husband in the family lot at the Frankfort Cemetery.

Mrs. Stanton was 85 years old. During the Civil War her husband was a member of General Robert E. Lee's staff and was cited once for bravery, when he crossed a stream under fire from both "Yankee" and "Johnny Rebs," poling himself on a raft, and captured a Union flag, which he replaced with the Confederate colors. While her husband was fighting Mrs. Stanton nursed the sick and wounded.

Their home in Maysville was abandoned and after war the Stantons moved to Clay City, afterwards going to Frankfort, where Major Stanton wrote his poems and edited a paper. He knew all the noted political men of the day and held several offices under various Democratic regimes.

The poem which brought her husband world fame, "The Moneyless Man," was always a favorite of hers. Three sons and six daughters survive.

M. POINCARÉ AT THE HELM.

As the dust of the French cabinet crash begins to settle, we observe M. Poincaré embarking upon one of the oldest games of ministerial government. It has frequently been noted that no sooner does the party of the opposition accede to power than those tremendous differences in policy about which the ex-opposition party had been making such a frightful row begin in an astonishing fashion to coalesce into the general background of "practical considerations." It is suddenly found necessary to continue, "as a matter of expediency," those policies which, before the ministerial change were about to plunge the nation into misery and ruin. It is always a delicate operation to harmonize the things which the party has now to do, in order to carry on the government, with the things which it said ought to be done when it was not under that cramping necessity.

M. Poincaré is at present attending to the operation, with the result that there is as yet some confusion as to the exact trend of his policy. The chicken has not yet been hatched, and it is difficult to decide how much of the news cabled across is chicken and how much is merely the fragments of the old opposition still clinging to it. It seems certain that, as a practical matter, Poincaré will be obliged to begin by following very closely in Briand's footsteps—this will probably carry France to Genoa and it may be that M. Poincaré will find, after the French delegation has gone to Genoa, that it will have to work there very much as it would have under Briand. So far the two essential points in which M. Poincaré has made plain his difference with his predecessor are the question of ambassadorial rather than ministerial representation in the European councils, and an extension of the British guarantee treaty which would not only defend the homeland of France but which would also give France a free hand in her activities throughout the rest of Europe, both in enforcing reparations sanctions and in building the elaborate card houses which she is always trying to construct out of the various fragmentary nationalities of central and eastern Europe.

So far, it might be said, so good. Neither of these demands will lead directly to an overthrow of everything which the Cannes conference set out to accomplish for Europe, although either one might do so. It all depends upon how M. Poincaré treats the future, when he is farther away from his speeches in opposition than he is now. But the point about the fact that these should be the first policies emerging from the new ministry is the point that neither of them represents any immediate practical advantage. They are both directed, not toward securing France a greater amount of reparations, say, but toward securing her a greater amount of prestige. France is playing for the moral, not the material supremacy, at the moment. The question which must be open in the minds of most observers is the question of whether the kind of moral supremacy for which she is playing is precisely the kind which would do her the most good in the end.—Baltimore News.

IF HE FAILED, WHAT

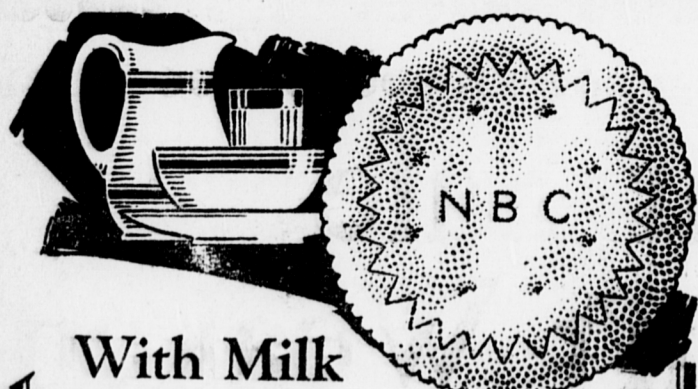

He is a Japanese renter on an excellent farm in one of Oregon's best agricultural counties. He lives on salmon and eats it with a stick. He and his wife, as all Japanese do, work early and late, practice frugality in all things and seize upon every chance by which to get along in the world.

They failed to make a profit this year. The other day the husband entered his landlord's office in Portland and said he would have to give up the farm and try to make a living in some other way. It was a conclusion that the kindly owner of the farm had already reached, and, on hearing the tenant's statement, he at once sliced off a portion of the annual rent.

And here is the moral of the story: If on their low standard of living and their known skill and energy in farm life, this Japanese couple cannot make things go, how about American farmers?

And if the profits of agriculture continue to decline and American farmers continue to move to town, as the will, and if, in consequence, Japanese and Slave and aliens from Southeastern Europe take the place of the American farmer, how much goods will the merchants then sell to the agricultural population, and who will constitute the domestic market for American manufactured output?—Oregon Journal.

"I want," said the very plain girl, "a book entitled, 'Cultivate Your Natural Beauty'." "Here it is," said the clerk, who wanted to be sociable. "Are you getting it for a friend?" And the very plain girl put her purse back into her bag and went right out.

FEDERATION OF LABOR

SEES NEED OF SAVING

Mr. Samuel Gompers Urges Wage Earners to Support Unified Government Movement.

In a statement prepared for the Savings Division of the Treasury Department, Mr. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, said:

"At the Denver convention in July, 1921, the American Federation of Labor dedicated itself to the work of protecting the earnings of the small investor from dishonest financial operations. The capitalist has means of investigating stocks and securities. The men and women of industry are too often robbed of their savings by fraudulent stock-selling schemes which should not be permitted by law. It is estimated that more than $500,000,000 was swindled from the public in 1920 by the sale of fraudulent and worthless stocks and securities. This loss should be avoided.

"We have urged, and shall continue to urge, the small investor to invest his funds in Treasury Savings Securities and Postal Savings, to the end that thrift, economy, and the accumulation of a savings fund may become a part of the everyday life of every American worker. That does not mean that investments offering better returns are unsafe. It is merely calling attention to the safest investment and the surest return.

"In fighting against fraud we do not intend to participate in any propaganda arguing that the small investor should be satisfied with small returns. Men with investment experience do not increase their incomes in that manner. The average person naturally tries to emulate the successful investor and far too often he loses his entire savings because of the difficulty he has of choosing between the actually sound investment and the investment which is apparently sound but is actually fraudulent. The situation has therefore arisen of worthy industries unable to attract investment funds. A healthier investment situation would develop if the Government would undertake to protect all investors from dishonest financial operations. This would give the small investor a better chance to make his savings a source of increased income."

and would constitute an additional argument in favor of economy and thrift."

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanné Price

New York. —City Comptroller Craig thinks the city should have an advertising department. He fears that New York has had a great deal of adverse publicity. That may be quite true, but somehow I have always felt from outsiders' attitude that our adverse publicity, emphasizing all our wickedness has a lure for the rest of the world fully as strong as all the sweet pretty things that could be said about us.

A memorial to the dog heroes of the war has been erected at the Canine Cemetery at Hartsdale, one of our most attractive suburbs. It is a Belgian police dog in bronze, his head turned towards the roadway as he looks down from the top of a rustic granite block. He wears a knapsack and on the ground at his feet are a bronze helmet and canteen. The $2,500 which it cost was contributed in small amounts varying from 50 cents to $100. The Hartsdale Canine Cemetery, by the way, is the only permanent burial ground for pets in the country. It was established in 1896 and it shelters many a strange little tomb. There is the sarcophagus of "Goldfleck, the beautiful lion," and tiny graves of canaries. Dogs, however, greatly predominate among the sleepers there.

We have been hearing some sad wails of distress recently from authors whose stories have been pictured without living quite up to what their creators felt they should. It is occasion to joy, therefore, to hear one author who has always been considered an especially severe critic of the picturizations of his own stories raise his voice in praise of the screen result.

W. F. HILL COMPANY, DETROIT

This is James Oliver Curwood, author of the book from which the big new Vitagraph picture, "Flower of the North," has been made. Mr. Curwood is delighted and that certainly means that the rest of the public ought to be. They will be, too. Mr. Curwood says, "I am accused of being an ultra-severe critic of the picturization of my own stories, but in this instance I cannot find words which can too fully express my satisfaction with the splendid piece of work turned out in 'Flower of the North.' The entire cast fits in like a cross section of the Northland itself." Now maybe, there have been authors and playwrights before Mr. Curwood, satisfied with the casts who portray their brain-children, but I maintain the are rare enough to make something of an occasion of the showing of this picture, which has just been put on at the new and lovely Cameo theater.

The "Astronomer of Madison Square," who charges you only a nickel for a long, satisfying look at the moon through his telescope, is not just a seeker of nickels with a telescope as a happen-so means of finding them. "It was transporting a party of scientists to the South Seas to look at the transit of Venus over forty years ago," he said, "that got me first thinking much about the stars and studying them. I thought if one star was so important as that, they'd all be worth giving some thought to." He says that men are his chief patrons. Either women don't care so much about the stars and the moon or else they are more self-conscious about stopping and peering through the glass in that public highway.

What a comfort there is sometimes just in seeing familiar faces whether they mean anything to you or not! Anyone who does not realize that has never yet known what it is to be lonely. An elderly man appeared so many nights at the same musical comedy that the box office man got interested. He didn't look like a romantic person who had "fallen for" one of the girls in the show, and he certainly didn't look as though he were thinking of investing in the production. Finally he asked him, "Why do I come so often?" he repeated. "Well, not because I'm stuck on anybody in the show, but just to see the same faces, just to have some friends in this lonely old town. I never get a chance to talk to them, of course, but I've seen them so often now that they're just like chums. So I keep on coming here instead of going to a new show and seeing a lot of strange faces again."

There seems to be a touch of romance, almost medieval in color, in the effort of the Austrian Government to obtain a loan here in New York with the Gobelins tapestry collection as collateral. Doesn't that sound like the days of —well, of Christopher Columbus, at least? The Gobelins collection which the Austrian government proposes to send here comprises 200 to 300 tapestries, the ancient work of makers in Florence, Spain and France. But the practical-minded New York bankers have so far, according to their statement, declined to lend money in exchange for housing these treasures.

We have been tremendously interested in the two little Eskimo girls whom Capt. Roald Amundson, brought here from the Arctic Circle and who have been spending several days here on their way to Norway, where they are to be educated. They are already devoted to shops and movies, so you see how powerful is the force of adaptation.

PRACTICING WHAT WE PREACH.
By IRVIN S. COBB

Most of us are ready to preach thrift for others. Not enough of us are willing to practice it on our own account. Probably the man who first suggested that the rest of the world should put by something for a rainy day didn't own an umbrella himself.

Many people look on thrift as some of us look upon a boil on another man's neck in the spring of the year. We tell him comfortably that a boil on his neck is a good thing for him—it'll purify his blood, clear his system of poisons, make his general health better. Later on we assure him he'll feel ever so much happier for having undergone the present experience. But for all that none of us would care to have that boil transferred from the others man's neck to our neck.

In a way of speaking the same thing applies to the practice of a rational thrift. Too often the average American follows the line of least resistance in this matter. When times are good he thinks he has no need to save. And when time sare bad he has nothing to save anyhow. Our spirit of national optimism is such that across the fair part of a fat year we fail to discern the creeping shadows of lean years coming after. The Arkansas mountaineer who explained that he didn't mend the hole in his roof because in stormy weather he couldn't mend it and in fair weather he had no need to mend it because it then didn't leak, was typical of a whole lot of us. The United States Government in carrying on its Thrift Campaign is striving to combat this common tendency amongst our people. The Government, through the Treasury Department, is trying to show us that a reasonable frugality does not mean miserliness; that the possession of honestly earned, sanely saved money makes us more valuable to ourselves and to our neighbors as citizens and more useful, collectively, as a nation. Treasury Savings Securities take the mortgage of the present and make brighter the prospect of the future. If everyone of us during 1922 makes up his mind or her mind to acquire Treasury Savings Securities—and to keep them—this year will be a happier year for Americans and a more stable year for their country. We'll know then that we can't go broke unless the United States goes broke first—and that's not probable.

Let us do this and the vendors of worthless and fraudulent schemes of investment will lose their main source of income, the fly-by-night promoter will suffer, the bucket shopper will feel the pinch of sudden poverty, and the man who lives by crooked financial devices will go to and fro bemoaning his fate.

But the rest of us will be infinitely better off.

SENTENCE AFFIRMED.

Frankfort, Jan. 21. — Although the incorrect use of "and" in the indictment charging Owen Walker of Madison county, with having in his possession liquors for sale, invalidated the indictment, yet the Court of Appeals says that no objection was made to the indictment during the trial, and, therefore the rights of the defendant were not prejudiced. The judgment of the lower court fining Walker is affirmed.

MINERS MAKE PROTEST.

Washington, Jan. 21. — Talk about a coal strike in April is premature, according to James Lord, chief of the mining division of the American Federation of Labor.

The issue, however, is clear enough, Lord asserted today.

"How is a man going to live with a reduction in wages when, at the pres-

ENDORSED AT HOME.

Such Proof as This Should Convince Any Maysville Citizen.

The public endorsement of a local citizen is the best proof that can be produced. None better, none stronger can be had. When a man comes forward and testifies to his fellow-citizens, addresses his friends and neighbors, you may be sure he is thoroughly convinced or he would not do so. Telling one's experience when it is for the public good is an act of kindness that should be appreciated. The following statement given by a resident of Maysville adds one more to the many cases of Home Endorsement which are being published about Doan's Kidney Pills. Read it.

D. S. Stout, 22 East Second street, Maysville, says: "Just after my recovery from pneumonia, my kidneys began to give me trouble. My back had a steady dull ache and it hurt me to breathe. My eyes would get puffy underneath. I knew my kidneys were in bad shape and something would have to be done to check the disorder, so I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. It didn't take long to rid me of my trouble. I take pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills."

Half Sick, Cross Husbands Will Be Helped by Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

Is he "cross as a bear" when he comes home? Is he nervous and a bit pale and always tired? You can help him back to health with Gude's Pepto-Mangan. He is run-down, and Pepto-Mangan, the wonderful blood tonic with the right kind of iron in it, will build him up. Help your husband get plenty of red blood and he will be well and good-natured again and stronger, too. Good blood, good health, makes happy good humor—that is the way it goes. If you don't give him some kind of a tonic he will probably get worse—they usually do. Go to the drug store and ask for Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid or tablet form. It is pleasant to take and works wonders if taken daily for a few weeks.—Advertisement.
